

Gap Years

You may decide to take a gap year, which is a break from your studies to do an alternative activity, this may be gaining some work experience through a job or voluntary work; earning money to help fund university or using the opportunity to develop your career with an experience that will be beneficial.

Many universities will allow you to defer entry, so that you have a place a year later, this way you still know that you will have a place waiting for you. You will need to check with individual universities that you are applying to, as some will not allow you to defer entry. This way you are also in college to get support with your UCAS application too.

Some helpful links with gap year experiences and information

