

A LEVEL SOCIOLOGY

Sociology is about explaining the reasons for peoples' behaviour. You will discuss important topics such as crime and deviance, environmentalism, religion, politics, Black Lives Matters and LGBT rights and how they influence our lives.

Introduction

This is a stimulating course where you will reflect on a wide range of issues including:

- How the media can cause crime
- Why childhood in our society is disappearing
- Why education can be damaging for society
- Why people join cults or become terrorists
- Why birth rates fallen whilst divorce rates have risen

Specific course entry requirements

College entry (please refer to the Entry Requirements section for further details).

How will I be assessed?

100% Examination which are made up of 3 exams at the end of Year 13.

What will I study?

During the course you will develop your understanding of crime and deviance, education, beliefs in society and the family. The criminology module will ask you to consider if crimes like drug use and prostitution actually serve a positive function in society; does the government lie, cheat, kill, steal and then cover up their crimes as they have the power, control and wealth; statistically, why do certain ethnic minorities commit more crime and why do women commit less? In Education, you will look at the purpose of the system we have in the UK; why girls always do better than boys and why working class people are potentially disadvantaged by the education system.

Where will this course lead me?

Sociology is an excellent course to study for a wide range of careers. Universities welcome applicants who have studied Sociology as they have developed an awareness and understanding of the processes within modern British society. Studying Sociology can lead to careers in journalism, education, social care, health, police, armed forces, business, law, the media and politics.
